

A photograph of the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire archway. The archway is a dark metal structure with the university's name in gold lettering. It is supported by two brick pillars. Each pillar has a circular seal with the university's logo and the word 'EXCELLENCE' and a vertical plaque that reads 'FOUNDED 1916'. In the background, a paved walkway leads through a green campus with trees and other students walking. The sky is clear and blue.

Supporting Blugolds through their Journey

WELCOME FROM VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT, BILLY FELZ

Welcome Blugold Families to our vibrant community at UW-Eau Claire! As the Vice Chancellor for Enrollment Management, it's my pleasure to extend a warm greeting to you all. This is an exciting year for UWEC. Earlier this summer, we broke ground on the new UW-Eau Claire Science and Health Sciences Building, and we're excited to be opening the Sonnentag complex in time to host a number of Blugold Welcome events.

Here at UW-Eau Claire, we pride ourselves on providing unparalleled support to our students throughout their academic journey. Behind the scenes, we have a dedicated team that meets weekly, diving into data to ensure we're proactive in offering the assistance our students need to thrive. Our counseling services staff stands ready to provide personalized care, while our engaged faculty members are committed to guiding, inspiring, and supporting each student.

But the support doesn't stop there! From our residence hall staff to our Blugold Dining team, we know that everyone throughout campus plays a crucial role in enhancing student life and creating a welcoming environment.

As part of our family, your support is invaluable, and we're thrilled to have you on board. Together, let's continue to foster an environment where every student feels empowered to reach their fullest potential. I hope to see you soon on Wisconsin's most Beautiful Campus.

If you ever need anything or have concerns or questions, reach out to our team at enrollmentmanagement@uwec.edu. We are always happy to help.

On behalf of the Parent & Family Ambassador Program, welcome (or welcome back) to the UW-Eau Claire family, and the 2024-25 academic year. As seasoned parents who have navigated the college journey with our own students, we want to extend a warm greeting to you all as you and your students embark on this exciting chapter.

First and foremost, take a moment to breathe. Whether this is your first or fourth student headed off to college, we know that the transition can be overwhelming, both for you and your student. Embrace the journey with an open heart and mind and remember that it's okay to feel a mix of emotions – excitement, nervousness, and everything in between.

We hope you'll consider getting engaged in campus events. Whether you're attending a Blugold athletic event, watching the invigorating Blugold Marching Band, or dancing the night away at the Viennese Ball – there's always something to do on campus. Beyond campus, don't forget to explore the broader Eau Claire community. Whether it's enjoying local festivals, trying out new restaurants, or taking a stroll through Phoenix Park during the Saturday Farmers Markets, there's something special about embracing the beauty and culture of our surroundings.

And finally, remember to trust that your student's got this! You've prepared them well for this journey. Empower them along the way but encourage them to immerse themselves in this experience – they only get to do this once!

Again, welcome to UW-Eau Claire. We've watched our students grow and flourish here, and trust that your students will, too.

Help your Blugold Succeed

The first couple weeks of college are a time of transition. For new, first-year students – they might be experiencing a wave of excitement. Blugold Welcome fills their September with activities, and on top of that – students are getting used to their classes and learning how to manage the “freedom” college brings. But, don't be surprised if you get a call from your student telling you that they're struggling to acclimate or fit in. This is completely normal, especially in the first semester. Reassure them that they're not alone and encourage them to try some things that get them out of their comfort zone.

For some students, the magic of the first month might be fading. Now is a great time to help students celebrate their early achievements and reflect on initial challenges, too. Remind your student that every assignment turned in, every paragraph of a paper written, and yes, every class session attended is an accomplishment!

We believe every student that enrolls at UWEC has what it takes to be successful, and are confident that your encouraging words can help keep your student focused, energized, and committed to their goals.

It's registration season!
Your student will need to ensure they've completed a few tasks in order to register. Students should check and clear their holds in CampS, meet with their ARCC advisor, and know their Enrollment Appointment time.

Enrollment times are based on credits completed, so will vary by student. It is very important that students register right when they are able. Doing so will give them the best chance at securing the classes they want to enroll in. If students have questions, they should contact the Advising, Retention, and Career Center, and be on the lookout for the drop in registration lab hours (offered in late November).

Did you Know?

Often, a 'W' is better than an 'F' on a transcript. If you hear from your student that they're concerned about their performance in a class, they might want to consider withdrawing from it prior to November 12. They should speak to their instructor and ARCC advisor before doing so. If your student is in this situation, encourage them to reach out prior to the 12th!

Encourage your student to push through and check in on them – offering encouragement along the way. Reassure them that they can do this, and remind them that they'll be rewarded with a nice break at the end of it all!

Did you Know?
UWEC has a Final Exam policy that allows students to reschedule an exam if they have 3 or more on a single day. This can help keep students from having a single day where they're overloaded.

Sometimes, adjusting back to the swing of it all can be odd!

Your student may notice some shifts or changes. Maybe the connections they made during the fall semester aren't as strong because they don't have a class with a friend they made, or perhaps they're realizing early on that one of their classes is going to really be a challenge for them.

One way to encourage some consistency is through a part-time, on-campus job. We know that students who work on campus in their first year earn a GPA about .3 points higher than those who don't. That's the difference between earning a 2.7 and a 3.0 (plus, the money helps, too!). Encourage your student to check out Handshake to find an on-campus job!

April can be a long month for students. After having a nice break in March, students really have to hunker down throughout April. While finals in May might seem like a ways off, they're really only a few weeks away. Now is the time that we encourage students to put the time and energy into creating study plans for their classes. By starting that prep work now, students can avoid cramming for finals. Reach out to your student this month to check in: do they know what their finals will look like? Have they started outlining some of their classes? Should they be seeking out any additional academic support through tutoring or faculty-student (office) hours?

With the school year coming to a close and finals rapidly approaching, your student is likely feeling several emotions. Excitement about finishing their first year, nervousness about their courses, or maybe disappointment about having to leave newly formed friends over the summer.

We know that managing those emotions and staying focused on the task at hand can be a challenge – and we encourage students to utilize resources on campus to help them navigate that. Counseling services offers free short-term counseling, along with crisis counseling, and the Academic Skills Center can help students learn important study skills. If you sense your student may be struggling as they wrap up the year, encourage them to reach out to utilize one of the many support services UWEC offers.

Did you know over one third of undergraduate students change their major at least once before earning their degree? It's very common for students to change their major as they explore college and find new interests. Academic Advisors in the ARCC are able to help students through this process. Advisors can help students change their major or minor, or run through exploratory exercises to determine a good major to explore. Students can schedule an appointment with their advisor through the Navigate app.

Once students have declared a major, their academic department will assign them a faculty advisor. Faculty advisors are available to provide students with expert information on decisions that will impact their future academic and professional goals. Students are able to turn to them when they have questions about major courses, internship and service-learning opportunities, networking connections and additional opportunities in their field. Meeting with a faculty advisor is a great first step in connecting with faculty in a chosen major.
